YOUR FIRST STEP IN PREVENTING MACULAR DEGENERATION

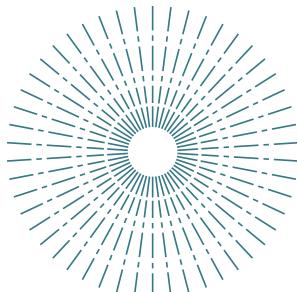

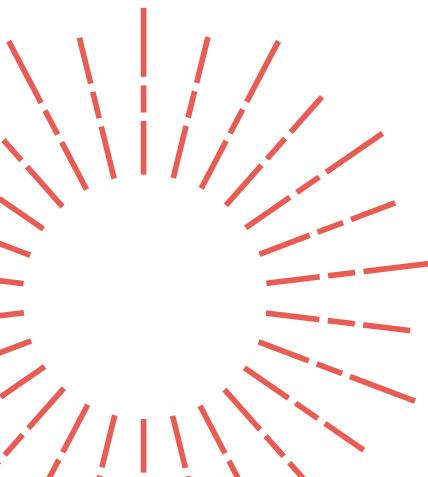

Sunlight is essential for our health and wellbeing but if we're not careful it can cause macular degeneration. Fortunately, there's an easy way to check how well your eyes are protected.

Our new MP-Eye test takes under a minute to measure the level of macular pigments in your eyes. Macular pigments are your eye's natural protection against the damaging effects of bright light. They sit just in front of your light sensitive photoreceptors and essentially act as sunglasses for your retina.

Put simply, the more macular pigments you have, the better you're protected. But even if your score is low, there's plenty of lifestyle and diet changes you can make to up your count.

Taking the MP-Eye test is a positive first step to protecting your eyes and reducing the risk of macular degeneration.

Editor

Hello readers.

As the first signs of spring emerge, so too does a renewed sense of optimism for our local businesses and community. Just as the season brings fresh growth, this is a time for revitalisation, collaboration, and opportunity.

In this jam-packed magazine, our ever-dependable contributors are back with five wonderful seasonal articles. We also have a fresh set of puzzles in our St. Patricks-themed Coffee Break on Page 54 with a chance to win a £10 Costa voucher.

We're spoiling you with 2 new competitions. Firstly we have a delightful Easter Hamper opposite, and you'll need to visit our website for another opportunity to win £200. Last issue's raffle winner gambled their £50 prize for a chance to win £200. Would you do the same? Go to tynervalleyexpress.co.uk/raffle to see how they got on, plus details on how to enter!

Special thanks go to Roy Frankland for the front cover, which won the recent online poll. We'd also like to direct you to Fed & Watered's ongoing campaign p11, Tynedale Hospice Open Gardens p45, Alpine Plant Fair p56, and the return of North County Show p57.

As spring unfolds, let's embrace the energy and optimism it brings. Whether it's supporting a local shop, attending a community event, or simply enjoying the season's fresh possibilities, every small action helps our local economy and strengthens our connections.

Stephen and the TVE Team.

Fed and Watered is a shining example of what a true community hub should be - warm, welcoming, and inclusive for all. It provides a safe space where people can connect, support one another, and feel a true sense of belonging. From hosting gatherings for widowers and survivors of domestic abuse to offering a supportive environment for those facing mental health challenges, the café plays a vital role in the wellbeing of so many.

Beyond its community work, Fed and Watered delights visitors with its delicious breakfasts and wholesome lunches, all made with care and quality ingredients. The menu boasts an amazing selection of hot and cold beverages, ensuring there's something for everyone to enjoy, whether it's a comforting cup of tea or a refreshing iced drink.

With its friendly atmosphere, thoughtful initiatives, and dedication to both people and nature, Fed and Watered is so much more than a café - it's a space of warmth, connection, and community spirit, enriching the lives of everyone who walks through its doors. This includes everything from employing people with disabilities, use of therapy ponies & therapy dogs, teaching life skills to schools and children's groups, and so much more.

After a battle with Gateshead Council, we are struggling to stay open due to planning permission issues that arose during the COVID pandemic. Despite the challenges, we are truly hoping and praying that they reconsider their decision, allowing us to continue serving and supporting our community.

Life's Lessons

An open letter musing about life, adulthood and the uncertainty of it all:

Dear reader,

Adulthood is a messy, glorious thing.

We go from childhood—a more structured routine juxtaposed with a freer set of responsibilities—into a wild unknown. In adulthood, there are so many twists and turns, a labyrinth of options and decisions, and that can be disorienting and frustrating.

In childhood, we are asked that familiar question, 'What do you want to do, when you grow up?' and you answer confidently - a doctor, a teacher, a world-famous actor. In childhood, becoming those things seems easy, but now you may answer with less certainty. Things seem harder than before.

Life can be turbulent and messy, as well as easy and seamless. Setbacks can come hand in hand with success.

One day you could take a step forward and then three steps back. Other days you take a step forward, pause, then try a risk by taking a step in a different direction. You never quite know where the road will take you.

It's easy to look around and feel like everyone has their life together. But here's the truth: everyone is still figuring things out. No one has all the answers. Everyone has felt lost at one point in their lives. Everyone is still learning.

Even if people seem like they have it all figured out, the reality is that every single person is trying to pave the way for their own journeys. Just like you, they are asking their own questions and wondering if they're behind in some areas of their life.

And figuring it all out can be hard. You can be confident and still feel self-doubt. You can feel anxious but still anticipatory, meeting the future with fearful but open arms. You can crave independence and seek stability and advice all the same.

All of these things are valid. And if you talk to others, you'll be surprised to hear that those around you experience this uncertainty and confusion too.

You are not alone.

If you feel out of sync, unsure of your next step, or find yourself taking risks and experiencing both failure and success, know that it's normal.

It's normal to outgrow people, to do career pivots, to feel lonely sometimes, and not know what you want to do or who you want to be. We don't need to have all the answers, maybe we never will.

And that's okay.

I see journeys as nonlinear, with no definitive end. There are bumps, diversions, and more before reaching any result. The fun lies in exploration and discovery.

Another truth: progress will look different for everyone. And the good thing about progress is that it can happen at any time.

You may be waiting for the perfect time to try something, but the reality is that there is no 'perfect' time. The point is that you try at all.

Some see age as a barrier, for example you may think that if you don't do something by the time you're thirty, that's your youth wasted. But success doesn't have an age limit: at any stage in life, one can pursue new endeavours and achieve their goals.

No one really knows what they're doing, life is a constant learning curve.

Know that it's perfectly okay to not have all the answers yet because no one else does either.

There is no right or wrong way, not really.

You have this one big, beautiful life, and it's okay to not know what to do with it. Along the way, you will slowly figure things out, you will celebrate wins big and small, you will fail but you will get back up and do it all over again. A quote from Arianna Huffington that I remember is, "Fearlessness is not the absence of fear. It's the mastery of fear. It's about getting up one more time than we fall down."

If you take one thing away from this letter, let it be this: wherever you are, know that you are not alone. We'll take this life one step at a time.

Tyne Valley Expressions

I really enjoyed this unique take on the journey of the River Tyne meandering its way through the course of history. Paul writes some very interesting pieces from the perspective of the romans in Northumberland, hopefully we might see another story soon! Kim.

Paul is a Financial Education Consultant living in the Tyne valley. He has been writing a wide array of stories and poetry since his school days. He has a large body of work, most of which is yet to be released to a wider audience. Twisting plots infused with his own unique humour are a constant theme. There is a lot more to come from this clever and creative writer.

Down to the sea - the life and times of the River Tyne.

'The source of the North Tyne River,' it says, inscribed on the stone obelisk. I am honoured. My birthplace officially recognised – at last. Better late than never I suppose. In fact, I got two mentions, how good is that! More about my Southern twin another time.

In my youth I rose from the moss beneath the dark brooding fell, full of energy. I just felt the urge to rush forth and explore as much as I could as quickly as possible. It was a blast. However, after many cycles of my life, things became a little mundane. I became aware of reincarnation as I matured, grew old, then disappeared into the sea, only to be reborn once again beneath that dark fell. Then you humans arrived and that was a game changer. Every time I sprang forth, you were doing things. All sorts of things. Let me tell you more on my journey down to the sea.

The land and the people gradually evolved. The last ice age proved to be a very entertaining period. I couldn't go anywhere for a while, then it warmed up a little and I resumed my seventy-three-mile journey to the coast. Your ancestors flourished, especially when hunting woolly mammoths. I used to think your ancestors were a wolf pelt short of a full coat, and maybe they were individually. But working as a team, wow, they were good! Unfortunately, not good news for the mammoth. The great ice flow shaped and etched the landscape, creating steep sided valleys through which I once more worked my way. Your ancestors lived in a bountiful land of rolling hills, moors, and valleys. Wild game was plentiful and the soil rich in nutrients on broad floodplains. Then the Romans arrived.

You must agree they liked to leave their mark. An attitude of 'anything you can do, I can do better' and they built a wall, also seventy-three miles long! The rapid pace of change that they instigated was impressive and some of the characters I got to see, interesting to say the least. Take legionary Junio and his pal Felix. I remember them sitting on the bank there, drinking wine after a summer plodge, and Junio being very upset. He somehow dropped the new shield boss, meant for the First Spear at Corstopitum, into my waters. Unable to swim he decided to avoid the Centurion's wrath and do a runner. Felix reminded him of the death penalty for desertion. Junio explained that he planned to stay low and join the Ninth Legion who were heading north into the highlands.

Northumbrian Writers Group...

Comprises six sub-groups meeting weekly (term-time) in Hexham, Ponteland, Morpeth and on Zoom.

If you would like to find out more about these friendly classes, please email Claire on: claire@claire276.plus.com

'I'll come back in a year or so when it has all blown over' he said. I don't actually recall Junio ever coming back, or the Ninth Legion for that matter.

Reaching Wylam, I recall a young boy, up there in that small white cottage on the bank. He was always busy spinning hoops, making things and I remember he had some kind of fetish for boiling kettles and staring at the steam. But I guess when you are poor anything seems magical. He wasn't always poor, mind you. When he grew into a young man he disappeared for a while. Then one day I was rolling by as usual, and there he was, a dapper young gentleman in his fine clothes and top hat. Clearly a man of means. Seems he went away and became a success riding the gravy train, his career took off like a rocket. Amazing.

Curving past the Newburn ford I am reminded of that battle between the English and Scots. Given that my north artery is almost in Scotland and my south in England, I don't want to take sides here, as I obviously can claim to have a foot in each camp. But it is fair to point out that the way the Scots crossed my waters on to the English side became a textbook move on how to conduct an opposed river crossing. History in the making!

Speaking of which, before they built Holy Cross church and that beautiful steeple at Ryton, it was known as Moot Hill by the Vikings. I recall my tidal reach allowing them to sail their long boats up to New Burgh and crown their kings, right there.

As I reach old age again, I am pleased to say I am the 'coaly Tyne' no longer. The abundant salmon negotiating my currents, along with anglers from far and wide, are testament to how much I have cleaned myself up. A positive note to end on as I complete my journey down to the sea.

I have many more stories to tell you, and I will soon, when I come back. Until then, go with the flow and carve your own way!

Is your furniture in need of a little care and attention?

From a dirty sofa to a scuffed bolster or a tear in your arm chair, Furniture Clinic is here to help you.

Our dedicated, friendly and professional team will visit you at a convenient time to give you a no obligation quote, and on many occasions will carry out the job in the home. If the job is more complicated, they will take the item to the workshop and return it to you when it is completed.

As well as repairs, we also provide a cheaper and faster alternative when it comes to updating your home and car's interior - we can re-upholster and re-trim leather and fabric furniture, or even carry out a complete colour change.

Re-trimming is available for both classic and modern cars. As leather specialists, we can custom match panels and seats to blend in with the rest of the leather, rather than re-trimming the full interior. This option saves you a lot of time and money, and will help retain the authenticity of a classic car.

In addition, French polishers are able to clean, repair and carry out full restorations to any wooden items.

As industry experts, Furniture Clinic serve many large national business needs, such as hotel and restaurant chains. Their diverse and respected client base means that you can feel confident knowing Furniture Clinic is the right company for you.

Active Ageing

How to be more active without exercising

How to be More Active Without Exercising

Being physically active is one of the best things we can do to age well, fight off disease and manage our weight. We know it's good for us, but at the same time it can be so hard to start and keep going. So many people have bad memories of PE at school, or think that exercise means running or getting sweaty in a gym, which definitely isn't for everyone.

However, there are plenty of ways that you can be active every day without having to put on trainers, change your clothes or pay for a gym membership. These everyday tasks can improve your fitness without you even knowing it, which can result in you living a longer and healthier life. The British Medical Journal has recently said that regular daily movement is like a "longevity jab", which can add up to eleven years to our lifespan. Incidental daily movement reduces the risk of aches and pains, boosts your metabolism and mental wellbeing, while also helping you to be more heart healthy.

Taking the Stairs

This is my favourite way to get in a bit of easy activity, when you take the stairs you are using lots of big muscle groups, boosting your hip mobility and reducing the risk of cardiovascular disease. If you have stairs at home try doing a few extra trips every day, and at work try to give the lift a miss and use the stairs, and if you can run up and down you get an even better reward!

Get on Up

If you work from home or spend a lot of time sitting, it can really impact your health, so try to get up and move around every half an hour or so. Sit to stand movements work a wide range of muscles, and also help to improve balance and stability, all of which help prevent falls. And if you have grandchildren, play with them down at their level. This gives you lots of opportunities to get up and down from the floor, which will improve your flexibility and dexterity, as well as joining in the fun with the young ones!

Super Clean

Vacuuming, mopping and dusting can be real chores, but while you are cleaning you are also getting a good workout. You are moving a lot in different ways, and if you try to hoover or mop a bit faster you can raise your heart rate and burn more calories, and get the cleaning finished quicker!

The Outdoor Gym

Gardening is a great way to be active, as well as giving you the chance to get some fresh air. Cutting the grass, weeding, bending and lifting all mimic the effects of being at the gym, and are good ways of lifting your heart rate and working your muscles. Even pruning will work the muscles and tendons in your hand, wrist and arm, so try switching hands every now and again for a balanced workout.

Use your Feet

Almost half of people surveyed recently confessed to being so unfit that they would get out of breath having to run for the bus. You don't have to try and run before you can walk though, try and get into the habit of walking more. Even a daily 10 minute walk could add a year to your life, and help you drop a few pounds if you can keep your heart rate up. And walking after a meal can help digestion and contribute to reducing the risk of a number of types of cancer.

Your Active Kitchen

When you are cooking, baking or even washing up you are giving yourself a mini workout. Every time you reach out, mix or stack the dishes you are boosting your flexibility, and reaching into the high cupboards gives your shoulders a good stretch, as well as your legs if you have to stand on tip toe!

A Quick Shop

If you need just one or two things from the shops, try to walk instead of driving, or get off the bus a stop earlier. If you can do small regular shops that involve walking and carrying your shopping you are onto a real winner. Having to go out shopping regularly gives you an excuse to get out and walk, and carrying bags will strengthen your arm and shoulder muscles and improve your balance and mobility.

So if you don't fancy getting your lycra on at the gym, or plunging into the swimming pool why not try and be more active in your everyday life? You'll see the benefits quite quickly, and it might prove to be a great way to help you feel better and age well.

A Change of Riverside

Recently I have been rather distracted from the Tyne Valley by another Northumbrian great river and its environs. So, I hope you will forgive me this time for telling you something of my work in Coquetdale, and the Rothbury Estate. Here, Northumberland Wildlife Trust has just taken on a large part, including Simonside, and is fundraising to secure the rest of nearly 4000ha, or 10,000 acres of land to create a national exemplar of nature restoration. But don't worry, I'll be back down your Tyne way very soon, in fact it's all connected anyway, as I will explain.

This connectivity of rivers and their catchments is all part of a very large vision for nature conservation. Joining up the Rothbury estate next to the Coquet and onto the hills and farmland beyond with places like Wallington and Cragside, Hepple and sites in nearby Redesdale could amass the biggest continuous nature area in England. In a wider sense it may positively impact longer term in all river environments in Northumberland and beyond, including of course the Tyne.

Looking at Wilder Druridge, that we are developing on the coast and the ambition of Wild Kielder and College Valley and parts of the Hadrian's wall area, you can see the start of a vast 'Northumberland Nature axis, from the northern coast to Kielder, through the Tyne Valley and the borders and then coast to coast beyond. Nowhere else is such big thinking for nature possible.

I've been doing a lot of 'future-casting' whilst walking the Coquet and Tyne, envisaging a wide area north of the Tyne and out west from Druridge, where every opportunity to enhance and blend wildlife habitats with sustainable farming is taken. Where, in its midst, a great traditional estate, has become the beating heart of nature and land restoration, alongside nature focussed farming; where over the years wildlife abundance and diversity is greatly increased and is one of the richest areas in England; a magnet for local people and visitors to see wildlife and experience wilder places. All in all, a very special nature landscape spectacle.

It would be something all Northumbrians could be truly proud of, in helping put nature back where it belongs, at the centre of a living working landscape, with a thriving rural economy and communities too. The lessons learnt there could spread into the wider farmed landscape as the so we see gains for wildlife everywhere.

That is what is about to start to happen at Rothbury.

We've been working behind the scenes for months to help make this happen! We have now secured a large part of it in perpetuity, and agreed to purchase the rest within 24 months. We have a giant fundraising campaign to do this and to help fund the management of the whole thing into the long term. It is a very exciting prospect indeed and already many supporters inspired by the whole vision are contributing in all sorts of ways.

Alongside the work of many other landowners and the National Park and other charitable and local private landowners the potential is staggering, a big push towards the 30% we need to help nature fully thrive. Maybe about as far as a Northumbrian golden eagle might one day fly in a day?

We want to work with partners and communities to create a national flagship of how nature and restorative farming can work together. It will still be productive, from extensive mixed grazing to local community food, but all with an emphasis on 'nature first and friendly' approaches.

All of that is only possible with local people involved and long-term funds available, and with local farmers and community on board. Before we do anything, we will survey and create a data bank of what's there to inform what is possible.

We have many plans, but there is a lot of shaping and ideas to be generated around this still to be taken into consideration, community engagement will be a big part of our approach, with plenty of opportunities for people from across the county who love this area to be involved.

Local engagement will start very soon so look out for information on where and how to get involved and comment. We are fundraising from now to raise a total of £30m to guarantee this land is secured and managed as a whole for nature by October 2026, so if you think you can help can or want to donate, please contact me at Northumberland Wildlife Trust or visit our website at www.nwt.org.uk

DRIVEWAY, PATIO, CONSERVATORY & GUTTER CLEANING

Driveway/Paving Cleaning

We use the latest Honda Surface cleaning equipment. This equipment is vastly superior to domestic pressure washers and can be seen in the results.

The surface cleaner reduces splashing and is designed to retain the integrity of your paving's base layer - it won't disturb the sand layer of your block paving.

All the waste is removed and your property is left clean and tidy.

We clean domestic properties as well as paving for commercial premises including the NHS trust hospitals in the North East.

Do you know what is lurking in your gutters?

The GleamTeam use the world's most powerful gutter cleaning machines to suck your gutters clean. Our unique system enables one person standing on the ground to efficiently and safely clean gutters and internal high level areas, up to a previously inconceivable 12 metres. From a bungalow to the height of a four-storey building - we can clean your gutters.

Exceptional results, on even the toughest challenges, thanks to the Skyvac specialist gutter vacuum range.

We can gain easy access over obstacles, such as conservatories or garages, by using our high reach vacuum system....

all from the safety of the ground!

CONSERVATORY CLEANING

Based in the Tyne Valley with 100's of happy customers The Gleam Team is here for all your outside cleaning needs. We use the latest equipment to get the job done in a clean and efficient manner!
